CLUB TO PLAN ITS WORK FOR A YEAR

MARYVILLE BUSINESS MEN WILL HAVE DINNER SEPT. 9

CAMPAIGN IS A SUCCESS

Special Writers Visit Here to Get Stories of Advertising—May Change Old Name

The members of the Maryville Commercial Club last night, after the 6:30 o'clock dinner at the Bainum Hotel, decided to hold the next meeting at 7 p. m. next Tuesday evening, September 9, at the Christian Church. This meeting will be the big meeting of the year, for at that time the club will outline its work for the next twelve months.

The Commercial Club feels proud of its record for the past year, for it has put Maryville on the map in a way that few towns of many its size ever show. Its campaign to advertise itself to itself has been printed and written about in national trade and agricultural journals, has been mentioned and featured in city dailies, has brought in inquiries from chambers of commerce the country over, and has given Maryville the name of a little city with big ideas. Only yesterday a feature writer was in town gathering data for an article, and the Country Gentleman, a nationally known agricultureal magazine, has asked to send a representative here to cover the big meeting.

Tuesday's meeting will not be devoted to glorying in past deeds. It will be the meeting wherein new visions for a bigger and better year and a forward glance will dominate. For that reason it promises to be the most important gathering of its kind ever held here.

One hundred and fifty men and women—for the wives of the club members have been invited to attend—are expected to assemble at the Christian Church on the chosen night. Interested men and women, not club members, are urged to be present and get the "spirit" that will prevade the atmosphere. The plates at the banquet will cost 75 cents, and the ladies of the Christian Church will serve.

Roy L. Emry, secretary of the Creston Commercial Club and organizer of the much-heralded community club at Fairfield, Iowa, will make the main address of the evening. He is a "live wire" with an inviting personality and an inspiring appeal. After his talk, plans will be discussed relative to the new year's work.

Among other things the members of the club will definitely settle the proposition to change the name of the organization from that of the Maryville Commercial Club to that of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce.

An announcement regarding an affair that is to take place in the not far distant future is to be made on that evening.

E. M. Claypool, former secretary of the Maryville Commercial Club, will attend the meeting.

E. J. Stever Helps the County School Fund—Loses Bottle of Whiskey and the Money He Got For It

E. J. Stever, who was arrested here yesterday on a charge of selling liquor, was fined $300 and costs, a total of $309.50, when he pleaded guilty to the charge before Justice W. L. Johnson, justice of the peace, yesterday afternoon. The $300 makes a welcome addition to the Nodaway county school fund, according to James Blagg, county treasurer. The fine was paid.

In addition to losing the $309.50, Stever lost the quart bottle of whiskey he sold, as well as the $10 that was paid for it by George Wallace, city night watchman, to whom he made the sale.

COUNTY'S FIRST ROAD TRUCK STARTS TO ITS WORK TODAY

Si Maffitt of Barnard Hired as Driver—Other Vehicle to Remain Here a While

The first of the two Nodaway county road work trucks donated by the government, went to work today, when Si Maffitt of Barnard, the first driver hired, started out for Independence township, where the truck will be used in road work. Maffitt has driven the Nash quad six months in the army, has attended a mechanic's school and is rated as a Class A driver.

The other truck will be kept in Maryville a while for further tuning up. It is probable that the body of this truck will be made so that loads can be dumped easily, thus making it more valuable for road work.

On the sides of the trucks will be painted the words "Missouri State Highway Department" and their numbers, 1036 and 1037. It is probable that words "Nodaway County" also will adorn the trucks.

The second driver for the trucks has not been engaged.

The county court has been in session yesterday and today. Road and bridge work occupies the attention of the judges.

FAVORABLE REPORT MADE INCLUDES SWEEPING CHANGES

EMPLOYEE IS TO SHARE

Will Get Part of Profits and Place on Board of Directors Under Private Ownership

Washington, Sept. 2.—The establishment of a system of profit-sharing by the employes is but one af the far-reaching provisions of the bill for the restoration of the country's railroads to private ownership which was favorably reported today to the Senate by Senator Cummins of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

In many respects this bill is extraordinary for the revolutionary and sweeping changes in railroad management and operation incorporated in its labor features.

As summed up by Senator Robinson, Democrat, of Arkansas, a member of the committee: "It not only assures to employes just, fair and reasonable hours, wages and working conditions, but it gives them a representation on the board of directors of various railorad corporations and establishes an emplye and welfare fund from excess earnings which it is expected some railroads will derive from the rates to be established under the bill."

LEADERS OF G. O. P. SPLIT IN CAUCUS

CONGRESSMEN FELL OUT ON A QUESTION OF HARMONY

LAND BILL IS TARGET

Mondell Proposition for Soldiers Berated Even by Republicans, Faces Repudiation

Washington, Sept. 2.—Party dissension is the latest development in the Republican congress which has been stagnated by inefficiency and lack of constructive leadership ever since the G. O. P. came into control of the legislative branch of the government.

The split occurred at a Republican House caucus this week. Meeting behind closed doors, the Republicans berated each other for their failure to stand together on what they were pleased to term "party questions", and then turned their guns on the Mondell soldier land bill of which the Republican floor leader, is the sponsor.

From the viewpoint of the country's fight forces in the recent war, the opposition to the Mondell bill is the most important. The determination of a large majority of the Republican House membership not to accept this measure in the form in which it has been framed merely echoes the esentiment previously expressed by Democratic leaders.

Warned the Republicans.

Representative Ferris of Oklahoma, the former Democratic chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, has repeatedly warned the Republicans that the soldiers were not satisfied with the bill, which seeks to parcel among them only undeveloped arid and swamp lands of the west and south.

Evidently Mr. Ferris' demand that the provisions of the bill be broadened has had its effect on the Republicans, because at their party caucus they literally made a football of their floor leader's pet measure. Only an ardent plea by Mr. Mondell not to put the House majority in the hole prevented a straight-out repudiation of his proposal.

"From a party standpoint," he said, "it would be most unfortunate to have the word go forth to the country that the Republicans in congress had decided to postpone, at least for the present any further action on the only bill that has ben introduced in this session in behalf of the discharged soldiers of the army."

What He Should Have Said.

With usual Republican inaccuracy, Mr. Mondell failed to state the whole truth. What he should have said was that the land bill is the only soldier measure the Republicans have permitted to see the light of day. Many bills beneficial to the soldiers have been offered by Democrats, but because Democrats proposed them they have been pigeon-holed in committee.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, whose partisanship is mellowing with his age, and Representative Charles Nichols of Detroit, who is more of an Independent than he is a Republican, were the moving spirits against the Mondell bill in the Republican conference. "Uncle Joe" ridiculed the idea that a soldier bill should be made a party measure, while Mr. Nichols indicated rather plainly that the Mondell bill is a joke in its present form and insisted that further consideration of it should be deferred until the discharged soldiers themselves had an opportunity to give voice to their desires in the forthcoming meeting of the American Legion at Minneapolis.

To Take It Up Later.

There was a long wrangle in which Mr. Mondell participated, and finally a resolution was passed declaring that the bill should not be taken up again until after a subsequent Republican conference could consider it. This discussion was enlivened by bitter passages. Later Mondell succeeded in having this action reconsidered, but only on his promise that it would not be taken up unless another conference had been held on it, probably next week.

Having, in effect, put the Mondell bill in the discard for the present, the Republicans then turned their attention to their own lack of cohesiveness and the penchant of some of their number to vote with Democrats on meritorious measures regardless of politics. To favor a Democratic suggestion, some of the more rabid indicated, was party treason. This narrow viewpoint was emphasized by Repreesntaive Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, the committee that is supposed to act upon the suggestions of President Wilson that unnecessary taxes, particularly the tax on retail sales, be repealed.

Runs President Down.

"We should go away in thirty days and remain until Christmas," was Fordney's surprising proposal. "Woodrow Wilson," he declared, "will never send any legislation to a Republican congress that does not bear a Democratic stamp. He's not built that way. He's a political trickster."

The quotation is taken literally from the account of the caucus in New York newspapers. It needs no elucidation, except to recall to the average voter that the Republicans last fall asked for control of congress on the ground that they would support the president. The first thing the president asked the Republican congress to do was to eliminate some of the burdens of war taxation. Apparently Mr. Fordney thinks that suggestion should not be heeded because it bears a "Democratic stamp."

During the conference, Representative Reavis of Kansas made what one New York newspaper termed a "fiery speech", reflecting the bitter disappointment he felt some weeks ago when thirty Republicans voted for the Kelly amendment allowing Secretary of War Baker to use parcel post in sending out the army foods which Reavis' sub-committee had vainly sought to show the secretary had withheld from the American people.

Asks For Harmony.

"The sub-committee had discussed this and decided aginst such an amendment," Reavis was quoted as saying. "If we make such recommendations we don't want to come into the House and be crucified by our own party. For God's sake, stand with us."

Harold Knutson, the Republican whip, electrified his party colleagues by announcing that he was about to install a call boy system in an effort to bring Republican members quickly to the floor.

"There is a Republican majority of 47 in the House," said Knutson, "but today 31 Republicans were absent and no one knew where they were. There was no trace of them. There should be a Republican majority of fifteen or twenty on the floor every minute. Every hour or so I go into the Democratic cloakroom and see how many Democrats are on the floor and, if necessary, I send a call to the Republicans by telephone. Why, the other day I actually witnessed a Democratic motion to adjourn carried by a Republican vote."

"Stand by the chairman of your party," cried Knutson. Stand by your party! The measures we have are carefully thought out and wil help us in 1920. It's Honest-to-God Republican legislation, and you should support it, I care not what the proposition is. There is one man on the Republican side who had not been here since June, and he's not sick, either. You must watch the Democrats or they'll put over an amendment on us. They're working at it all the time. They've got the greatest outfit of big burglars and hot air artists on that side imaginable."

Knutson's speech broke up the meeting.

DISABLED SOLDIERS STUDY AT GOVERNMENT'S EXPENSE

Men Etering University of Missouri Receive From $80 to $150 While Their Work Is Satisfactory

Columbia, Sept. 2.—Former United States soldiers, sailors and marines, who were disabled in line of duty, entered the University of Missouri, September 1, to get an education at the federal government's expense. These men will receive from $80 to $150 a month as long as they satisfactorily accomplish the work prescribed.

The vocational work is divided into two classes, collegiate and non-collegiate. The first class is for those men who have had as much as a high school education. These men are taking preparatory work in journalism and medicine and entering directly in the College of Agriculture and the School of Engineering. For the non-collegiate class, composed of men who have not attended high school, a special two-year course in agriculture has been established. The curriculum calls for practical work on the university farm and runs throughout the year. This course is a combination of the two-year winter and regular four-year courses given by the College of Agriculture.

The University of Missouri has been approved for the training of these men, who are appointed by the federal board of Vocational Training, Rehabilitation Division, at St. Louis. Harry S. Jacks, formerly editor of the Columbia Herald-Statesman, is vocational adviser for this division. A. R. Gwinn, a graduate of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, is in charge of the men taking vocational agriculture.

The appointments are made for one year. A student without dependents receives $80 a month, a $25 a year allowance for books and has all university fees and deposits paid by the government. A married man with no children receives $125 a month; married with one child, $125 a month and proportionate increase for each child until $150, the maximum, is reached. All must have received an honorable discharge from the service and their disability must have been incurred or aggravated while in service.

A special faculty has been secured for the non-collegiate class. Charles Woody, a former M. U. baseball and football man, who recently received his discharge as first lieutenant in the army, will be one instructor and Roy Kirkpatrick, a graduate of the Missouri College of Agriculture, will be the other. Buick Sedan for Seven

THE BUICK Model K-Six-50 four-door Sedan is the latest development in closed car design. The front seat, instead of being divided, is full width, giving additional roominess to passengers and providing an extra brace to the body which adds considerably to its stability.

The latest type of cowl and side lamps, tilting steering wheel and satin finished interior trimmings are featured in this Sedan. The lining is done in rich plush, without binding. Altered lines and low-hung body give added grace to the exterior without sacrificing head-room. The main compartment accommodates two disappearing seats, which are built for genuine comfort.

Silk shades on rollers afford privacy or shut out a too ardent sun. Ventilation is controlled by the adjustable windows and windshield, the door windows being fitted with patent handles for raising or lowering them. Suitable lights give interior illumination. Lowered seats give greater riding comfort.

Meat Prices and the Packing Houses

YOU ALL KNOW THAT THE MODERN MEAT MARKET BUYS ITS MEAT FROM THE PACKERS WHERE IT IS SCIENTIFICALLY KILLED, DRESSED AND REFRIGERATED.

The packers have built up a wonderfully efficient system which makes them capable of handling meat in large quantities on a profit of half a cent a pound where small concerns would have to have much more than that. In that way they have been able to pay the farmer good prices for live stock and sell dressed meat to the consumer at lowest possible prices.

The packers, like the railroads may do some would take the control of these big packing houses out of the hands of the business men who have built them up, and put it in the hands of subordinate clerks in Washington, who do not know a shoulder of hog from a hind quarter of beef.

We have seen what a mess has been made of railroad and telegraph control, and we have not seen rates lowered. Unless we do something to stop legislation from incompetent juggling of business for political purposes we will face a condition much worse than high prices.

High food prices don't harm people who RAISE FOOD, and when everything else is high how can beef and pork be produced for less than at present?

The Kenyon-Kendricks bill, now before congress things that could be remedied, but the remedy is not in government control, and we who depend, on the present system of handling meats should put in our protest against this ANTI-PACKERS' BILL.

Rural Carrier Suggests Ways to Cheer Him Up

You Can Try These If You Want To, But Maybe Your Own Letter Man Won't Appreciate Your Efforts—It's Not All in Earnest.

(Written by Charles H. Burneson, Rural Carrier, Mansfield, Ohio).

In my sixteen years experience as a mail carrier, I have discovered many ways by which the farmers living on the various routes in this country can help their carriers and thereby make things easier for them as they make their daily rounds, so that I will pass them on to the rest of the boys and they, in turn, can put the farmers next, and both will be mutually benefitted thereby.

Hint, No. 1

When you have a letter already stamped which you desire to mail, do not fail to put it in the extreme back end of the mail box, as it not only looks more artistic, but it is so convenient for the mail carrier to take off his blankets and put one foot on the buggy step to reach in and get the letter; it varies the monotony of the day for him and tends to give him that perfect disposition and love for his fellow men that we are all striving for. Be sure to pick out the most stormy days, as it is much more effective at those times.

Hint No. 2.

When you have several letters to mail and no stamps, get yourself six pennies; put one letter in the back of the box, the second one in the middle and the third tight up against the side; now back up a few feet and throw the pennies in the box. This is not only good exercise, but is fast becoming one of the favorite sports in the rural districts.

Hint No. 3.

This is just a variation of Hint No. 2. Put in one letter, and on top of it place two pennies, then another and two pennies, then the third and two pennies. Arrange them in a straight pile. This is a great help to the carrier, as most carriers haven't brains enough to know how much it takes to mail a letter and he feels so relieved to have it all figured out for him.

Hint No. 4.

When you are mailing two letters, and have just one stamp and one of the letters is to go forward on the route that day, be sure and put the stamp on the letter that does not go forward on the route that day. This gives the carrier a chance to take off his gloves, unbutton his overcoat and get out a stamp. It is wonderful what you can do for him in this respect if you only try.

Hint No. 5.

When mailing a money order for a dollar or so, be sure and have nothing less than a twenty dollar bill to have changed, or, better still, give it to him in pennies and nickles. It makes such good ballast for his buggy and increases his respect for your intelligence.

Hint No. 6.

When purchasing stamps never buy over a dinme's worth at one time, as you may over-buy and they might not be good the next week, and there is no use getting reckless with your money and buying a whole dollar's worth at a time.

Hint No. 7.

When you meet your carrier on the road, stop him and ask if there is any mail for you. After he gets it all out of the sack, just tell him to take it on to the box. Never omit this, especially on bad days, as it requires such a little effort on your part to please him.

Hint No. 8.

On the days when the roads are a glare of ice and his horse is skating all over the surrounding territory, be sure to ask him if it is slippery, as you did not want to go home under any false impressions concerning this matter, for the poor fish may be teaching his nag a new stroke in fancy skating and you must keep well informed on these matters.

Hint No. 9.

On rough days, when he comes down the road dodging jabs in the ribs and leads to the head from his buggy top, be sure to ask him if the roads are rough, for he may be just going over his last boxing lesson and you might get some good pointers.

Hint No. 10.

When placing three or more boxes at a corner, place them at least three feet apart and have one post lower than the next. This keeps him from having things too convenient and making the mail at one stop.

Hint No. 11.

Some day when it is not fit for a dog to be out, be su[illegible] ask him the question that is sure to please: "Are you earning your money today?" Then get your mail, go to the house and call it a day, as the carrier's respect for you has increased a hundred fold and you have gained a friend.

There are many other interesting things you can do to help him as he makes his daily rounds, but I think that I have mentioned the most important of them.

PLANS BASEBALL TOURNAMENT FOR THE FANS OF MARYVILLE

Manager Black Would Have Four Teams in Three Games Here a Week From Sunday

Maryville will have a one-day baseball tournament a week from next Sunday, if the plans now being made by Manager Home Black of the local team work out as he hopes. The Maryville manager was somewhat encouraged by the increased attendance at the game ast Sunday and is hoping to put Maryville firmly on the baseball map by a tournament such as the towns in the neighborhood, notably over the line in Iowa, have been having.

Black went to Shenandoah yesterday and played with the team of that town in a tournament being held there. Shenandoah beat the Holmes team of Omaha yesterday by a score of 2 to 1.

In the proposed tournament here Black would have one St. Joseph team, either the Vitala Boosters or the Chases, Shenandoah, Maryville and either Albany or Stanberry. With four teams in the contest, one game would be played probably in the morning and two in the afternoon. The winning teams in the first two games would meet in the last game for the championship.

Some Colors on Maryville Team.

Maryville baseball followers will be interested to learn of the colored battery that the St. Joseph Vitala Boosters thought worked in the game here last Sunday. In reporting that they lost the game 4 to 2, the Boosters named the local battery "Blue Brown and Black." Where the Brown got in is a mystery. The battery Sunday was Bleuel, Black and Stephens.

Take the Drudgery Out of Wash Day

The woman who uses an electric washer and an electric iron, has very little need for a "wash lady," or if she is lucky enough to have help, she will always be able to keep them.

Washing and ironing the electric way is really not unpleasant work, and it is done so quickly that it gives you time for recreation and rest on wash day the same as other days.

An electric washer costs a little more than a hand machine, but is costs but a few cents to run it for an ordinary washing, and they are made so well that they are really the cheapest washers in the long run.

Let us show you an electric washer.

THE BUILDING OF FENCE IS A SPRING AND FALL JOB, and we are now in the midst of the Fall season, when the farmer is building a permanent fence along the road, or dividing fields, or perhaps making a corn-field hog tight.

Those of you who have used the Genuine American Fence need not be told of its merits, but for those who have not, let us say that the outstanding feature is in the method of fastening the stay wires to the line wires. This joint makes a complete hinge, and the advantage in this hinge is that should you wish to take the wire off and restretch it, or should it be broken down, it may be pulled back into its original shape and appearance by the use of a stretcher. LOCAL AMATEURS TO REPEAT THEIR HOME TALENT SUCCESS

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" Will Be Played Again at the Empire Theatre, Wednesday, September 10

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram," the home talent play that attracted so much favorable attention when it was first given here the evening of July 31, will be repeated at the Empire Theatre Wednesday, Septembe. 10. So numerous have been the requests for a repetition especially from those who were prevented from seeing it by the bad weather the other time it was played, that Clarence Cook, who directed the play and took part in it as one of the leading characters, has decided to give it over again. The first rehearsal was held last night, and the director was more than pleased with the way the characters remembered their parts and with the spirit they put in their acting.

The same cast that was in the original performance will be in this one, with the exception of Miss Madeline Strawn, who took the part of the real Mrs. Brown. Miss Strawn is now in Clarinda, Ia., and will be unable to take part. Miss Persis Hunt, already known as an amateur actress of some note in Maryville, will take the role.

Clarence Cook again will be Jack Temple, the recently married man who takes a night out and meets unexpectedly with a beautiful married woman under unusual circumstances. He finds himself in a delicate situation where explanations are demanded by his indignant wife. Her refusal to accept them and her telegram seeking verification for them furnish the basis for the plot.

Miss Ruth Bookman, who was so indignant last time, will be the indignant wife again, Chilton Robinson, who made one of the individual hits of the piece, will be Mr. Temple's bosom friend who changes his name to keep his friend out of trouble and who is kept busy all the way through in fixing up explanations.

Lee Maier will play Captain Sharpe; Miss Cleona Kirch, Dorothy; Miss Lucile Cummins, Mrs. Fuller; Miss Persis Hunt, Mrs. Brown; Wilbur Allen, Wigson, the butler; Creston Maul, John Brown.

Germany Now Has Monopoly on Censorship; Others Are Off

GERMANY

Instead of Abolishing it, Huns Make It More Severe—Staff of Linguists Kept in Important Postoffices—Purpose is to Trap Citizens Attempting to Evade Heavy Taxes After the War.

By Alfred Andersen
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Berlin, Sept. 2.—Germany now boasts a monopoly on censorship. While the United States, England, France and other allied nations weeks ago abolished this unpopular interference with personal and business correspondence, the Germans have made the censorship control more severe. At the general postoffice in every important city is a staff of linguists capable of perusing any letter in any language from Turkish to Portugese.

The purpose of the German censorship is to trap tax dodgers who lately have made or less successful attempts to smuggle their portable property into neutral safety beyond the reach of the German collectors. And as an instrument of the treasury department, the German censorship apparently is serving its purpose excellently. This impression is gained from personal experience.

Two weeks ago I received an income tax questionnaire from the local branch office. I made the necessary entries and returned the questionnaire to the tax collector. A week later I received a note inquiring how long I had lived in Prussia and what period my stated income covered. This, too, I answered. Later I was summoned to the tax bureau personally.

The deputy collector pulled out an envelop from a card index filing cabinet and spread a batch of correspondence out on the table before him. He looked at me and said:

"Here is a letter from the Hamburg censorship bureau. It says that letters from your bank in Copenhagen prove that you regularly receive considerable amounts at the Deutsche Bank in Berlin. The Copenhagen letters also indicate that you have money in a London bank."

The Hamburg censors, I realized, had systematically opened all letters exchanged between me and the Copenhagen bank and carefully noted the contents, and could thus give the Berlin tax office an idea of how much money I had at my disposal since coming to Berlin. My explanation that the remittances represented funds for business expenses, and not personal income, was accepted and my name stricken off the Berlin roll of taxpayers.

But the effectiveness of the German censorship remains.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Although no general strike of the railway shopmen will be called today in protest against President Wilson's grant of 4 cents an hour wage increase, the sentiment of the craftsmen is strongly against the acceptance of the increase, declared the chairman of the Chicago district Council of Federated Shop Crafts. TAFT ANSWERS CRITICS

By EX-PRESIDENT WM. H. TAFT.

Of course we cannot hope to make the great changes such as the League of Nations will bring about without opposition. Fortunately, the war has taught us the great advantages of international co-operation. It was only by good team work that the free liberty-loving nations were able to whip Germany.

The treaty which the United States Senate is debating obligates the members of the proposed League to protect one another against attack from enemies outside their own boundaries bent upon conquest. Although this agreement (Article X of the Covenant) is vital to any arrangement which seeks to prevent war, it has been attacked on the ground that it would draw the United States into wars in various parts of the world and force us to send our boys to fight in quarrels which did not concern us.

We should remember, however, that the main purpose of Article X is to frighten nations tempted to wars of conquest from yielding to the temptation, by the certainty that they will be crushed if they begin such a war by a universal boycott and a union of forces of the world against them. If a big war breaks out again, the United States will be forced to take part in it whether we have a League of Nations or not. We tried hard enough to keep out of the war with Germany but found we couldn't.

A little war contrary to the League rules could be handled by the powers close at hand. Certainly it would not be necessary to send American troops to suppress an uprising in the Balkans when prompt action by the armies of Italy or some other nearby powerful nation could suppress the fracas before American troops could even get started.

HEAVY CUT IN COAL YIELD BY CAR SHORTAGE

Washington, (Special).—Shortage of cars in the coal fields has cut production of bituminous coal 12,000,000 tons in ten weeks and threatens to bring about a recurrence of the coal famine of 1917-18 unless checked without delay, according to testimony given by John Callahan, traffic manager of the National Coal Association, before the senate committee investigating the coal situation, at its first day hearing here.

"During the two weeks ending August 2 and 9," Mr. Callahan said, "car shortage caused the bituminous coal mines of the country to lose approximately 5,900,000 tons of coal, enough to supply the entire state of New Jersey for ten months. The loss in ten weeks has been sufficient to supply all the New England states for eight months." Mr. Callahan declared that if there are not cars at the mines it is impossible to operate the mines to full time capacity. The shortage of cars had come, he said, at the time demand for coal is increasing, and at a time when railroad efficiency should be at a maximum. "If the bituminous coal operators of the country are given sufficient cars to take away the coal they mine, Mr. Callahan said, "and if there are no labor disturbances to prevent the operation of their mines, they can supply sufficient fuel to meet the country requirements next Fall and Winter. If they are not supplied with more cars, there undoubtedly will be a repetition of the coal shortage of 1917-18, at least to some degree."

Shortage of cars is not alone the only threatening situation in the industry, however, according to Harry N. Taylor of Kansas City, president of the association who preceded Mr. Callahan on the witness stand. The 600,000 miners employed throughout the nation are about to formulate demands for high wages, Mr. Taylor declared. The more radical among the numbers he said were endeavoring to apply the methods of the soviet government of Russia to the bituminous industry. "If their counsel should sway the more conservative of their numbers and extremely radical demands should be made, which could not be acceded to, Mr. Taylor said he doubted if the operators "could mine a pound of coal," "to save the public from calamity," Mr. Taylor said, "it will be necessary to overcome three things: First, that we do not have an extraordinarily severe winter; second, that the Railroad Administration move the coal in a regular manner, and third, that by effort of the miners we produce at least 11,000,000 tons of bituminous coal weekly for the remaining nineteen weeks of the year.

"This is more than has been produced in any one week during the year thus far." All wage agreements between miners and operators, Mr. Taylor said, would expire with the proclamation of peace by the President. The miners had already decided, Mr Taylor said he was informed, in one section, to try to obtain a 6-hour working day as against eight hours now a 5-day week and an increase in pay. They will meet in Cleaveland, Ohio September 9th he said to decide on what demands to make of the operators, and there will be a joint conference between operators and miners at Buffalo, September 25. "If this convention of September 25, fails in agreement," Mr. Taylor said, "I do not know whether we are going to be able to mine any coal or not. I very seriously doubt whether we will. With that condition confronting us in the mining world, the situation is very serious. If that goes into effect there is little or no hope of overcoming a very serious shortage of coal this winter and from suffering in country.

"Miners were given a substantial increase in wages by the President during the days of the Fuel Administration," Mr. Taylor said, "and it was not uncommon in many fields for the industrious men in times of full time operation, to earn $15 a day or more. But they are getting restless," he said "Already the more radical element are determined to put into effect the soviet government of mines," he declared.

13,296 BOYS AND GIRLS TAKE PART IN CLUBS IN MISSOURI

Their Farm Products in 1918 Were Valued at $120,029—An Increase Is Expected This Year

Clumbia, Mo., Sept. 2.—Thirteen thousand, two hundred and ninety-six boys and girls in Missouri have organized into clubs by the extension division of the University of Missouri in an effort to improve home life on the farm, according to R. H. Emberson, state leader of boys' and girls' clubs and assistant professor of rural education at the state University. There are 646 clubs in the state and in 1918 they turned out $120,029 worth of products.

There are twelve lines of club work fostered by the University of Missouri: sewing, baking, hot lunch, canning, gardening, poultry raising, grain judging, stock judging, corn growing, pig feeding, calf raising and sheep raising. A local club is formed by at least five boys and girls between 10 and 18 years old, and must have a president and secretary elected from the membership and a local leader who has charge of a definite program of work.

F. L. Wright, assistant state club leader, has visited every one of the 646 clubs of the state. He says that 1919 will show even greater work by the clubs. The clubs expect to produce at least 400,000 pounds of pork this year. The work teaches the boys and girls to work for themselves and to feel a spirit of independence. Work and play are combined in achievement and as the youths become older they are the leaders in their community according to Mr. Wright.

H. M. Heinen of Oklahoma City, Okla. who has been the guest of Lawrence Schumacher, left for his home this morning.

Joe O'Donnell went to Excelsior Springs yesterday morning to spend two weeks taking treatment for rheumatism.

WILL SELL RED CROSS SEALS ON ENVELOPES AT CHRISTMAS

Tuberculosis Association Will Have Firms Send Health Message With December Bills

Red Cross seals, the little stamps which are sold each Christmas to aid in the fight against tuberculosis, are to be sold this year to big firms and factories throughout the country attached to envelopes, according to the announcement made by the National Tuberculosis Association.

This is a new departure in health education, but through it, all December bills from department stores, factories, mail order houses and other large concerns, together with all of their regular correspondence, will be messages of health to everyone who receives them.

The seal, with a health slogan, will be printed on the back flap of the envelope. Orders for the envelopes are coming in to the headquarters of the health campaign, 124 East 28th St., New York, rapidly, and it is evident the plan has met with the enthusiastic approval of all big users of envelopes.

This year the seals are dark blue and green, with a picture of Santa Claus going down a chimney into a home carrying the message, "Merry Christmas and a healthy, happy New Year." The seal itself is printed on the flap of the envelope and above it is the slogan, "For the health of this community."

The plan is designed to promote the actual use of the seals. During the past few years, when the seals have been sold, purchasers have not actually used them on envelopes to any great extent. But because health is a matter of such public importance, the National Tuberculosis Association has decided on the new scheme to get wider publicity for the stamps.

Seals will be sold, of course, not attached to envelopes. They will be offered in postoffices and stores as they always have been but the envelope plan is merely to give a wider circulation of them through the country.

Each envelope printed will have the corner card of the firm using it on the corner, if the firm so desires.

Many of the big firms which have been in the habit of using the stamps as their contribution to the health of the community have planned to use the special seal envelopes because it does away with the necessity of attaching the separate seals to the mail. It also gives them an envelope that is being used by other firms which have aided the fight on tuberculosis, and so identifies them with the great movement.

The stamps are especially offered to big business houses because the health of the community is of vital importance to them, and they are being asked to get behind the movement as a matter of a good community business.

ORIGIN OF MEDICINES.

The egents employed for the ertatment of disease are taken from the three kingdoms of nature, the vegetable, a nimal and mineral. Most medicinal substances are taken from the vegetable kingdom and consist of leaves, flowers, seeds, barks and roots. The old fashioned herb and root remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which owes its success to the vegetable kingdom, has constantly grown in popularity and favor until it is now recoguized as the standard remedy for female ills. (Adv.)

Obituary.

William Woodhead was born April 6, 1843, in Yorkshire, England, and departed from this life, Aug. 30, 1919, at his home in Barnard, Mo. Age 76 years, 4 months and 24 days.

When a boy he came to America accompanied by his parents and one brother, and upon landing in New York City, the family came to Omaha, Nebr., and finally located at Malad City, Idaho. While residing in Malad City, he was united in marriage to Rachael Lambert of that city, who died in 1876. To this union was born two sons, William and Joseph. William died in infancy. In 1878 he was again united in holy wedlock to Sarah F. Morris, of Andrew Co., Mo. They came to Nodaway county in the year 1881, and located on a farm west of Barnard. He built a good residence and added other improvements and eventually developed it into one of the best farms in the township. He resided there about twenty years, when he and his wife moved to Barnard, where they have lived happily together until he bid farewell to the transient scenes of life. In the year 1866 he surrendered his life to the will of His master and united with the Latter-day Saints in Malad City, Idaho and was baptized by Wm. Thomas. Later he transferred his membership to Guilford, Mo., where he remained a faithful member until the day of his death. He was also a member of the I. O. O. F., and remained true to the principals of that order. It is a marked testimonial to his standing among his fellow citizens that he has been elected and repeatedly re-elected to the office of Mayor of Barnard, and Justice of the Peace, being the present incumbent of the latter office until his death. The duties of these offices he continued to discharge to the entire satisfaction of his constituents. During the past seventeen years he has been on the official board members of the Barnard High School and during the major part served as president of the board until this year when he refused to serve any longer. Not a stone was left unturned to make the school what it should be and he was always in favor of any progressive movement. He has been true to his honest convictions in all things and his dealings with others have been characterized by a sense of justice and square dealings which have earned for him the unbounded confidence and respect for all. He was a man of surpassing geniality and his cheerful face shed its radiance on all around him. During his short sickness, he bore it all with Christian fortitude and with patience. To his wife he was a loving companion, an affectionate father, a loyal citizen, and a neighbor of sterling value. Besides his wife he leaves to mourn one son, Joseph Woodhead, of Colorado Springs, Colo., several grandchildren, other relatives, as well as a host of friends. The funeral service was conducted from the Methodist Episcopal 1:00 p. m., in the presence of a large 1:00 p. m., in the presence of a large concourse of friends. Rev. Arthur S. Olsen, pastor of the M. E. Church officiating. Interment was in the Barnard cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Tarrance and son, Eugene of Liberty, Mo., returned home yesterday after visiting in Maryville at the homes of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Ferguson and Mr. and Mrs. George Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Casey left this morning for Muskogee, Okla., to visit relatives. From there they will go to Ranger, Texas, where they will spend the winter.

They Live and Love on $40 and $45 and in the City, Too, What's More!

These are Monthly Wages, and in Chicago—When He Gets a Raise They are Going to Wed—And They Expect to Save a Lot of Money—Read Here How They Oo It.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—The high cost of living worries Miss Clara Pratt, Chicago saleagirl, and W. C. Lange, her fiance, who is an "assistant building manager," not a bit.

Not that either of them are burdened with wealth. On the contrary, Miss Pratt earns but $40 a month, while Mr. Lange's salary is but $5 more—$45 a month.

Nevertheless the couple are to be married—that is as soon as Lange's salary is increased to $65 a month.

Even on $45 a month Lange says he has had no trouble in living and loving and saving money. He has managed to show Clara "a good time" and buy her a $45 diamond engagement ring out of his savings from his $45 a month salary.

Miss Pratt is "some little manager," Lange says, and after hearing her tell how she manages on $40 a month one cannot but believe him.

Miss Pratt is not twenty, and lives with her mother, who also earn $40 a month.

"We do not have a bit of trouble getting along on our salaries," Miss Pratt said.

"We pay $20 a month rent. I do all the washinging, ironing and housecleaning in addition to my regular work. We make our own clothes. Our groceries average $1 to $1.25 a day. I have two hats every season, usually made over from the year before. I trim them myself, and one hat lasts three or four seasons. I never pay more than $5 for a pair of shoes and buy two pair a year. I wear silk stockings at fifty cents a pair. I also buy one or two pair of silk stockings a year. Before I put them on I wash them, as they wear longer if you do that. My beau brings me his old shirts and I make house aprons out of them. I make all my own underwear.

"As for toilet articles, a fifty cent box of face powder lasts me a fonth. I never use perfume or toilet water."

Then, too, Miss Pratt allows $1 a month for charity, frequently indulges in an ice cream soda and after all this "we save at least $4 a week."

Her fiance also has reduced the art of saving to a science.

"I get along fine on $45 a month," he says. "That's because I know what I do with my money." In his budget he includes $4 a week for board; car fare, $1 a week; lunches, $1.50 a week; clothing, $5 a month; shoes, $5 every three months; charity, $1 a month; newspapers and tobacco, 50 cents a week; six or seven neckties a year at 50 cents each; one shoe shine a week.

"I shave myself, but get a haircut every three months," he said.

Four sets of underwear yearly at $1.50 for summer weight and $2.50 for the "heavies," a winter overcoat at $20 every three years and a pair of gloves every fall at $1.50 completes his budget.

"We'll get along fine when Clara and I are married," he said.

WAR RISK INSURANCE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Democrat-Forum will print whenever possible information sent out by the government concerning the government insurance. All letters of inquiry that cannot be answered here will be forwarded to Washington for answer.

Question 8. Will the premiums on my converted policy be higher than those on my present policy, and if so, why?

Answer. Yes. The reason is that you are buying insurance at a "level rate," which means that you pay the same premium throughout the whole period, and that your premiums do not increase from year to year, as is the case with your present term insurance. In addition, by the payment of larger premiums now you secure certain privileges in the policy such as cash surrender value, loan value, and paid-up and extended insurance values. (See Question 14 for a description of these values).

Question 9. Can anyone else besides myself change the beneficiary of my insurance?

Answer. No.

Question 10. Does a person have to be dependent upon me in order to be named as my beneficiary?

Answer. No.

Question 11. May I convert a part of my insurance and retain the remainder in its present form?

Answer. Yes. You may convert any amount from $1,000 up to $10,000 in multiples of $500.

Question 12. What protection does the converted insurance provide, and what benefits are payable?

Answer. It protects you in the event you become totally permanently disabled, and it protects your beneficiaries in the event you die. The benefit payable is $5.75 per month for each $1,000 of insurance that you carry and the payment of these monthly installments is continued for 240 months. If, however, you become totally permanently disabled and live longer than 240 months, the installments will be paid to you so long as you live and are so disabled.

Question 13. What is the description of the varied forms of policies which the Bureau offers?

Answer. (a) Ordinary Life Policy.

On an ordinary life policy the premiums are payable during the life of the insured, and the policy becomes due and payable at the time of the death of the insured or upon his becoming totally permanently disabled.

(b) Twenty-payment Life Policy.

On a Twenty-payment life policy the premium is payable only during twenty years, and the policy becomes due and payable at the time of the death of the insured or upon his becoming totally permanently disabled. The difference between a Twenty-payment life policy and an Ordinary life policy is that instead of paying premiums throughout his lifetime the insured pays only for twenty years.

(c) Thirty-payment Life Policy.

On a Thirty-payment Life policy the premium is payable during only thirty years. In every other respect it is similar to the Twenty-payment life policy.

(d) Twenty-year Endowment Policy.

On a Twenty-year Endowment policy the premium is payable only during twenty years. At the end of twenty years, if the insured is still living, the amount for which he is insured will be paid to him in one sum. If, however, the insured dies or becomes totally permanently disabled before the end of the twenty years, the policy will become due and payable in installments.

(e) Thirty-year Endowment Policy.

On a Thirty-year Endowment policy the premium is payable only during thirty years. At the end of the thirty years, if the insured is still living, the amount for which he is insured will be paid to him in one sum. If, however, the insured dies or becomes totally permanently disabled before the end of the thirty years, the policy will become due and payable in installments.

(f) Endowment Policy Maturing at the Age of 62.

On an Endowment Policy maturing at the age of 62, the premium is payable only until the insured becomes 62 years of age. When the insured reaches 62 years of age the amount for which he is insured will be payable to his in one sum. If, however, the insured dies or becomes totally permanently disabled before reaching the age of 62, the policy will become due and payable in installments.

Question 14. Will my converted policy contain all the usual provisions included in policies isued by private companies? If so, what are they?

Answer. Yes.

government policies wil be guaranteed cash and loan values, and also paid-up insurance and extended term insurance values. Policies issued by private insurance companies usually do not give these values until the insurance has been in force for three years. Furthermore, the values guaranteed by the government give you your full money's worth without any "surrender charge". This is a distinct advantage to you.

The "cash value" of a converted government policy is the amount the government gives you if you choose to give up your insurance.

The "loan value" means that you can borrow money on your policy up to 94% of the cash value.

"Paid-up insurance and extended term insurance values" mean that in the new policies, if you stop paying premiums after one year, the government allows one of the following two options:

(a) To remain insured for a certain time without cost to you.

(b) To receive a policy for a smaller amount, which will be paid no matter when you die, but on which you will not have to pay any more premiums.

Question 15. Is any provision made for paying dividends on the converted policies?

Answer. Yes. The converted policies provide for the payment of dividends from the gains and savings as they may be determined and apportioned.

Question 16. Is the insurance subject to claims of creditors, is it taxable, and is it assessable?

Answer. No.

FINDS A JOKER IN CORPORATION LAW

STATE SENATOR SAYS REPORTS MAY BE DEMANDED

SECRETARY HAS POWER

Commercial Rivals May Profit by Opportunity to Learn the Condition of Other Firms

Jefferson City, Sept. 2.—A "Joker" in the corporation regulating tax law passed by the last legislature, and a conflict beeween the new law and the 1909 and 1917 laws, which were supposed to havebe en repealed by the 1919 act, has been discovered by State Senator Conwat Elder, member of the Statute Revision Committee, who is handling the revision of the corporate laws of the state.

The joker in the new law is a provision, slipped in, Elder believes, unknown to most members of the senate, whereby the secretary of state, at any time he desires, may call for a detailed report on the financial standing of any Missouri corporation.

May Give Rivals Advantages.

Elder contends that the provision might be of great benefit to the commercial rivals of any business corporation should a secretary of state ever desire to favor certain business interests by permitting them, under the guise of a lawful act on his part, to inspect the records of competitors. Elder says he regarded the provision as dangerous and likely to raise a storm of protest from Missouri business houses as soon as its existence becomes known. A penalty is provided for failure of a business house to comply with an order of the secretary to show its books.

In preparing the corporation statute for revision and publication, Elder says he also discovered that a law similar to the 1919 law was passed in 1913. In 1917 a bill was passed repealing the 1913 act and enacting a new regulatory law for the corporations. The 1919 act was supposed to repeal the 1913 and 1917 acts. But the 1919 act, Elder discovered, does not specifically repeal the act of 1909.

The 1909 act provides that a corporation failing to file its annual report with the secretary of state is subject to a fine of $50 to $1,000. Prosecution is to be in the hands of the prosecuting attorney, the circuit attorney of St. Louis, or the attorney general. The prosecutor get sone-fourth of the fine and under the old law these prosecutions have provided considerable revenue for prosecutors.

Two Laws Now In Effect.

The 1919 act fails to do away with that provision, and also provides for forfeiture of the corporation charter. Bth laws are now in effect and it is expected that because of their share in the fines the prosecutors will enforce them.

Elder has found two decisions of the State Supreme Court and one by the St. Louis Court of Appeals which he believes gives him authority to leave out the 1909 provision, and in revising the statutes on this subject he will leave the 1909 provision out.

Suits heretofore filed under the old law, for failure to make the annual report by July 1, have aggregated thousands of dollars. The custom has been to drop the suit by stipulation, the corporation paying a fixed sum as a enalty. The 1919 act provides that the forefiture may be revoked upon payment of $50 if settlement is made within a year. After a year the corporation must pay the full incorporation fee.

From Four Feet to Four Wheels

THE retail merchant's sphere of usefulness is sharply defined by his ability to make prompt delivery.

In the days before motor trucks came into general use, his progress was measured, not by his vision, initiative or merchandizing ability, but by the speed and endurance of horse flesh.

With the automobile and truck came a constantly widening field of activity—quicker deliveries were possible. A widened service meant more and better satisfied customers and the merchant was able to expand his business to the utmost.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been an important factor in making this expansion possible. By anticipating the demands for gasoline and lubricating oil, it was prepared to supply these necessary products to merchants, even in remote places.

Further, the very feature of wide distribution and low price of gasoline has enabled the small merchant to utilize power-driven delivery.

Thus has the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) been an important factor in the expansion of business by helping the little merchant to become big, and the people in remote corners to have the advantages of cities.

How well the Company has functioned may be judged by its size, for no concern could have reached the proportions of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) without rendering an important and definite service to the public.

LEAGUE WILL PREVENT WAR

Senator Owen Says This is So Because the People Now Rule.

ATTACKS LODGE'S ARGUMENT

Oklahoma Senator Says Republican Leader Seems to Forget that Military Autocracies Have Been Swept Away.

Washington, D. C.—Senator Owen of Oklahoma, in a speech in the senate Saturday replied to the arguments advanced August 12, by Senator Lodge against the League of Nations. The Oklahoma senator devoted his attention particularly to the fundamental purpose of the League of Nations, namely, an instrumentality for the maintenance of the world's peace. "The Massachusetts senator calls attention," he said, "to the alluring promises made in the treaty of Paris of November 20, 1815, and the high purposes alleged in the treaty of the Holy Alliance, and shows historically that war followed, and not peace, he argued by necessary inference that these promises of peace and assurance of high purposes did not produce peace and war, and therefore that the declaration of purposes found in the present covenant of the League of Nations would naturally be followed by war, because "mankind repeats itself."

"The obviate fallacy of this argument is that the alleged purposes of the Holy Alliance had nothing to do with the consequences which ensued from that alliance. War did not result from the virtuous promises made to the people by the Holy Alliance. The Holy Alliance made willfully, deceitful and false promises of brotherly love and peace in order to deceive the people of Russia, Prussia and Austria, and thus prevent them from going into a revolution as the people had done in France under conditions of tyranny and brutal military power. The fact that wars followed the Holy Alliance was because the treaty between military dynasties, controlled by intrigue, by rival armaments and ambitious secret purposes. They were lined up against other similar governments at that time not greatly in advance of them in structure of government or in conception of liberty and popular rights. England, however, was becoming steadily more democratic and soon withdrew.

"The cause of war was wrapped up in the treaty of the Holy Alliance of Russia, Austria and Prussia because of their then several secret, dynastic and military ambitions. There was during that period no available or possible provision in the world for conciliation and arbitration in the settlement of international disputes. There was no means of promoting progressive disarmament, and the lust for power, unrestrained by law, unavoidably led to war as a necessary consequence. There was no adequate restraining power in all the world, and no forum where the organized opinion and power of mankind could make itself effective for peace as there is available now.

"The trouble with the senator from Massachusetts is that he has shown himself unable to discriminate between the consequences of governments based upon tyranny and brute force, such as Russia, Prussia and Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey, and the consequences favorable to peace of governments based on the consent of the governed, on justice and liberty, such as the United States and Canada, the South American Republics, Australia, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy.

"The senator from Massachusetts has failed to discover what every student of history ought to know, who has a discerning mind and an intelligent comprehension, that the instability and wars of military dynasties had an adequate cause, and that these causes rest in the 'rule of the few' moved by intrigue, by gross human selfishness, by ambition and lust for the property of other people, leading them to develop great armies nominally for defense but always secretly for offense, so well described by Von Bernhardi, in his description of the Hohenzollerns and of Frederick II. Everybody seems to know this except the senator from Massachusetts. The stability of republics and their power for peace is not based on preambles nor lofty promises of high purposes, as the senator from Massachusetts seems to think. They are based upon sound principles affecting the structure of government, which go to guarantee justice, liberty and humanity and the organized righteous self government of the people. These are the principles which guarantee stability. These are the principles which not only promise but will make sure the peace of the world.

"The senator loosely argues 'that since mankind repeats itself' and 'since the Holy Alliance made virtuous promises' and war followed, therefore that the virtuous promises of the present covenant of a league of free nations can bean nothing but war. The senator argues from the false promise that the promises of the autocrats of the Holy Alliance were sincere. They were not sincere. They were wickedly false.

"I wonder when the learned senator was quoting the treaty of the Holy Alliance with its virtuous 'promises' that he did not also quote the secret amendments to the treaty of the Holy Alliance of 1822, which disclose infinitely wicked deceit of these promises—the secret treaty of Verona, in which the 'Holy Alliance of liars' pledged their undying hostility to democracies of the world, and the freedom of the press. Since the senator thinks it was the 'virtuous promises' of the Holy Alliance that led to war let me call his attention to their pledge to destroy the democracies of the world, and he will see, I trust, an abundant cause for war necessarily involved in the treaty of the Holy Alliance with its secret amendments at Verona, not because of their 'virtuous promises' but in spite of them. Their secret purpose was war."

The senator here quoted the terms of the secret treaty under which monarchies pledged themselves to make war against all peoples in Europe who might seek to establish democracies.

"The trouble with the senator from Massachusetts," the Oklahoma senator continued, "is that he really believes in the power of the few over the many. He seems to see a wide distinction between 'representative government' and 'by the people.' He does not believe that the people of a state have a right to initiate and pass the laws that they desire or to veto laws they do not want. He takes that for the people to express their opinion upon a question of law is dangerous to the principle of constitutional government.

"As I said in noting this charge against the leadership of the Republican party in the senate, I most cordially am not. The senator from Massachusetts may have forgotten, but I have not forgotten his famous speech in Boston on September 15, 1907, for I had been but two days in the senate when on December 16, 1907, Senator Hale of Maine, had printed 20,000 of this famous speech of the senator from Massachusetts. This was the public opinion bill then pending in the Massachusetts legislature." Senator Lodge, he said, attacked this bill on the ground that it would destroy constitutional government in his state.

"May I not be permitted to appeal to the better Americanism of the senator from Massachusetts, not to throw himself across the path of human progress and world peace? He is not, as he thinks, waging war against Woodrow Wilson; he is waging war against the desires and the hopes of all mankind."

Senator Owen argued that the League of Nations will guarantee by its provisions the future peace of the world, for it puts an end to secret treaties such as those which folowed the Holy Alliance. "It is a real, living, vital force," he said, "born on the battle field out of the blood of all of the nations, of earth. The world will not go back. It is moving forward under the leadership of God and everlasting doctrines of Christ."
